3. Closing comments for our subcommittee

Commissioner Nick Fleisher shared his screen and showed the final report document.

The commissioners workshop the final report document from the subcommittee.

Commissioner Nnamdi Pole noted there was an objection to calling the Northampton Police Department progressive. He said he would like to emphasize here that when he offered to revise this piece, that he wanted to provide better support for his claim that the Northampton Police Department was progressive. He said he is noting strong evidence of one way in which the Northampton police Department has behaved in an exemplary fashion, With regard to its being the first in the state to publish its data online and make it available, and to do that in response specifically the Obama administration's request for police departments to be more transparent.

Commissioner David Hoose said there were many suggestions that some people of color, lack trust and confidence in their safety around any armed police. He noted the commission heard many complaints about harm from Northampton police experienced by people of color and and people with mental health challenges. He said the only concern he expressed was giving the label progressive to the entire department. He said he is comfortable with using the term “progressive” to talk about the NPD leadership. He said as far as police chiefs go, Joey Casper is about as progressive as they come and that he does agree with Nnamdi about the website and the efforts that have been made to provide written material.

The commissioners workshop the report document language.

Commissioner Nnamdi Pole offered to send his subcommittee additional thoughts to the committee via email through Noa.

Pole seconded at 5:45pm. The motion adjourn is passed unanimously.
